Protection of human subjects

Per NIH policy, human subjects protection training is required every three years for all key personnel who are involved in the design or conduct of NIH-funded human subjects research. To satisfy this requirement, only good clinical practice (GCP) is acceptable (https://grants.nih.gov/policy/clinical-trials/good-clinical-training.htm). CITI certificate is only acceptable if it specifically says it is for GCP training (CITI offers many different courses). Online training is available in a variety of languages, free of charge, through several organizations, including but not limited to the following online courses: Global Health Training Centre (https://globalhealthtrainingcentre.tghn.org/ich-good-clinical-practice/); Training and Resources in Research Ethics Evaluation (https://elearning.trree.org/).The RCC and NIH do not require or endorse any specific training program.

What does this policy mean for you and key factors to consider when sharing data, coming January 25, 2023. Read More

NHLBI Adverse Event (AE) and Unanticipated Problem (UP) Reporting Policy
